

REFUGEES

How can they be integrated into local communities and their needs met?

BOY WITH ORANGE (OUT OF KOSOVA)

A boy holding an orange in his hands
Has crossed the border in uncertainty.
He stands there, stares with marble eyes at scenes
Too desolate for him to comprehend.
Now, in this globe he's clutching something safe,
A round assurance and a promised joy
No one shall take away. He cannot smile.
Behind him are the stones of babyhood.
Soon he will find a hand, perhaps, to hold,
Or a kind face, some comfort for a while.

Are we exercising our corporate responsibility to refugees?
Have you had the opportunity to offer support to asylum seekers and refugees?
